REASONS FOR DECISION(S)

You are 41 years old serving your 4th federal sentence of 2 years for unlawfully in a dwelling, assault causing bodily harm and fail to comply with probation order. The offence was committed in Winnipeg when you and your co-accused forced your way into the victim's apartment and demanded that he pay his outstanding drug debt of $15.00. You punched and kicked the victim about the face and body, grabbed him by the hair and slammed his head into the wall several times, pulling lumps of hair out of the victim's scalp. You threatened to kill him if he did not pay the debt. You were uncooperative with police at time of arrest and minimized the role you played by putting most of the blame on your co-accused.

Your lengthy criminal history began in 1976 and includes 62 convictions for assaults, property related offences, mischief, fraud, sexual assault, breach of trust, utter threats, unlawfully at large, escape, narcotic related offences, attempt robbery, weapons related convictions and attempt to obstruct justice. Numerous assault convictions include domestic violence and all offences are substance abuse related. You have served approximately 25 provincial periods of incarceration. You successfully completed day and full parole in 1982. You were granted a period of full parole at _____ in 1993 but violated your abstain conditions when released to the community. Full parole and statutory release were revoked.

Psychological counselling began on May 9, 2001 with Dr. _____. Although no report is on file, Dr. _____ verbally indicates that you appear eager and appreciative of the opportunity to participate in counselling.

Since your arrival at _____, you have incurred 5 institutional charges.

Your plan for day parole is to reside in a _____ Community Residential Facility. You have been accepted at the _____ and _____ Halfway homes. You will be expected to participate in counselling at the _____ and participate and complete the _____ Residential Treatment program. With the structure and programming recommended, your Case Management Team support day parole prior to your statutory release in January 2002.

In assessing risk as unduly high for conditional release, the following factors are noted:

- your criminal orientation and behaviour which includes a clear capacity for violence, have been evident for over 20 years and 66% of similar inmates will reoffend.
- your repetitive violations of probation combined with parole and statutory release revocations indicate that external conditions do little to protect society.
- you have not completed significant programming to address anger, violence or criminal values issues.
- in February 2001, a psychologist assessed you as requiring domestic violence or sex offender programming and the offence cycle program. Any release should commence with transfer to minimum security and via Escorted Temporary Absences. None of these expectations have been achieved.

- your drug use in prison after completing the Offender Substance Abuse Pre-release Program places in question any real change resulting from the program. The psychologist concluded that intoxicant use would greatly inflate your risk.

- a psychologist has been seeing you since May 2001 and concludes that you genuinely want to change and are developing "a practical level of insight". No risk assessment has been provided.

- there is no basis to conclude that significant attitudinal change has occurred in the past year and you remain an undue risk for criminal behaviour.

REASONS FOR SPECIAL CONDITION(S) FOR STATUTORY RELEASE:

Substance abuse is a key factor in your offending and any use will unduly increase the risk to reoffend.

You admitted to the need to complete a substance abuse treatment program while verbalizing a concern that you may not follow through with such treatment on statutory release. The Board concludes that completion of such treatment is crucial for management of risk and a special condition is therefore warranted.

NEW INFORMATION OR GIST OF CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION SHARED WITH OFFENDER

Your institutional parole officer relayed that you had a positive urinalysis on February 7th for THC and then a negative urinalysis on March 7, 2002. Your community parole officer relayed that your charges were dealt with on March 27th and results were that the assault with a weapon charge was stayed and you were convicted on the uttering threats charge and received time served. You also reapplied to treatment program and were accepted if suspension is cancelled. You want to reside there on a voluntary basis. Your common-law said you could reside with her again after completing the program.

1. ASSESSMENT OF BEHAVIOUR DURING CURRENT RELEASE AND IDENTIFICATION OF RISK FACTORS

You were released on statutory release on January 9, 2002 with two special conditions, "to complete the substance abuse treatment program" and "Must abstain from intoxicants". On January 14, 2002 you started the substance abuse outpatient program. You returned to live with your girlfriend and your years of incarceration escalated problems in your unstable relationship. On January 18, 2002 you allegedly slapped your common-law wife and then smashed a phone down on her hands. Police said that you were belligerent, verbally abusive and threatened to kill one of them when you were arrested, there was no mention of substance use. You state that your common-law had woken you up with her yelling and that you automatically reacted with anger and that you were completely sober during this argument. Your release was suspended on the same day when you were arrested by City police and charged with assault with a weapon and uttering threats. Your current court date is March 26, 2002.

2. COMPARISON WITH PREVIOUS PATTERN OF CRIMINAL BEHAVIOUR

You have an over 20-year history of assaultive violent behaviour, including domestic violence. You did not complete any programming or counseling to address with your anger problem. Even though you did not return to substance abuse, your quick anger and arrest for assault and uttering threats places you back into your crime cycle and places the community at undue risk.

3. PROFESSIONAL OPINIONS REGARDING BEHAVIOUR ON CURRENT RELEASE

Parole supervision report indicates some progress in your behavior on your short statutory release. Your parole officer is supporting cancellation of your statutory release suspension on the following conditions: 1) if your charges are stayed 2) if you are granted bail 3) if Treatment program is willing to take you back 4) if you agree to voluntarily reside at a Community Residential Facility. The case management expressed concerns with the volume of anger exhibited without intoxicants involved.

4. INFORMATION FROM OTHERS REGARDING BEHAVIOUR ON RELEASE

None provided.

5. ASSESSMENT OF PROPOSED RELEASE PLAN AND CONCLUDING RISK EVALUATION

If the suspension is cancelled or on your next release, you plan to reside briefly at a Community Residential Facility and reapply to the program. said that they would consider accepting you if you reapplied.

REASONS FOR DECISION(S) AND/OR VOTE(S)

At the hearing, your institutional parole officer shared your on-going frustrations and difficulties since your return to the institution. You were required to serve disciplinary sentences as a result of your past performance prior to your statutory release and positive urinalysis test results for THC on February 7, 2002. You admitted smoking marijuana prior to your statutory release. The second urinalysis test dated March 7, 2002 returned negative.

Your community parole officer, also provided updated information about your outstanding charges. The assault with a weapon charge was stayed while you were convicted of the uttering threats. You advised the Board that you terminated your relationship with your common-law realizing that you need to focus on your own rehabilitation this time.

You were forthright and appeared sincere in your presentation with good understanding of your needs that requires significant attention. You acknowledge your impulsivity and poor approach in handling the situation. Your parole officers recommended cancellation of the suspension, given the new release plan.

There have been some reasonable progress in your behaviour in the community despite the incident that resulted in your statutory release suspension. However, you need to continue addressing your relationship problem impulsivity and/or problems with anger management. You admitted expressed willingness to address these issues.

The Board concludes that your risk remains manageable in the community. Therefore, statutory release suspension is cancelled.

REASONS FOR SPECIAL CONDITION(S)

Your impulsive behaviour and difficulty in managing anger have been key factors in your criminality. Your attendance/participation in an intensive Anger Management program will assist you in your reintegration and healing.

BOARD MEMBERS' ASSESSMENT OF RISK

1. ASSESSMENT OF BEHAVIOUR DURING CURRENT RELEASE AND IDENTIFICATION OF RISK FACTORS

Upon release in January 2002, Correctional Service of Canada did not require you to attend inpatient treatment as ordered by the Board and placed you in an outpatient program.

Within ten days of release, you incurred charges of assault with a weapon/utter threats with your girlfriend being victimized. After the assault charge was stayed and you were convicted of uttering threats, the Board cancelled your suspension.

Within a few days, you absconded.

REASONS FOR DECISION(S) AND/OR VOTE(S)

Your decision to ignore release conditions within days of having a prior suspension cancelled is consistent with your history of non-compliance and increases your risk to reoffend sufficiently to warrant revocation.

REASONS FOR SPECIAL CONDITION(S)

Substance abuse is a key factor in your offending and any use will unduly increase the risk to reoffend.

Your supervisor will have full authority to direct your program involvement to address substance abuse and anger issues and to respond to any failure to comply.

BOARD MEMBERS' ASSESSMENT OF RISK

1. ASSESSMENT OF BEHAVIOUR DURING CURRENT RELEASE AND IDENTIFICATION OF RISK FACTORS

You commenced statutory release on July 19, 2002 and release was suspended on July 22, 2002 when you incurred new criminal charges. This was your third suspension of statutory release and each time you had only been out for a short duration.

It is apparent that you had no intention or motivation to remain pro-social while in the community.

2. COMPARISON WITH PREVIOUS PATTERN OF CRIMINAL BEHAVIOUR

Ongoing similar pattern of behaviour dating back to 1976, demonstrating apparent comfort in a criminal lifestyle.

3. PROFESSIONAL OPINIONS REGARDING BEHAVIOUR ON CURRENT RELEASE

Case Management Team recommend that statutory release be revoked.

4. INFORMATION FROM OTHERS REGARDING BEHAVIOUR ON RELEASE

5. ASSESSMENT OF PROPOSED RELEASE PLAN AND CONCLUDING RISK EVALUATION

Voluntary residency at a Community Residential Facility, continuing relationship with most recent victim.

REASONS FOR DECISION(S) AND/OR VOTE(S)

After being suspended three times while on statutory release, it is apparent that you are unwilling to abide by conditions of release. You have again incurred further criminal charges and your risk has now escalated to an unmanageable level that could place the public at undue risk.

Your statutory release is therefore revoked.

REASONS FOR SPECIAL CONDITION(S)

Substance abuse has been a consistent factor in your criminal behaviour and any use of intoxicants would increase your risk of reoffending. This special condition is reasonable and necessary to manage your risk in the community.

Mr. Lamb, at age 46 you are serving a one year sentence for Utter Forged Document, Break Enter and Commit, Theft Under (x2), Possession Property Obtained By Crime Over, and Theft Over, these in relation to when you committed a variety of property crimes and exchanged stolen goods for drugs.

This is far from your first offence as the Board notes an extensive criminal history which spans some 30 years and which shows no significant break. Along with property-related offences, you have committed offences involving considerable violence, including multiple assaults and a conviction for sexual assault. We read that you have demonstrated disregard for court-imposed restrictions as evidenced by escapes of lawful custody, being unlawfully at large, and for failures of compliance. You have been on many conditional releases but have violated them by either returning to substance abuse, absconding, or by incurring new charges.

You also have a number of outstanding charges which have radii restricted to Alberta and Ontario.

It is obvious that substance abuse is a key factor in your criminal behaviour, as are your deeply entrenched criminal value system, hostility toward the judicial system, disregard for others, past abusive sexual behaviour, and negative peer groups. In fact, all these have been assessed as criminogenic factors which need addressing. Although you have participated in programming both during this sentence and in the past, the benefits of same appear to have remained limited as you continuously revert to your well-rehearsed patterns of offending.

The Board notes too that, although you verbalize your intent to change, your institutional behaviour continues to be less than stellar as you have garnered charges for disobeying orders and being threatening/abusive to staff.

You are now applying for both Day and Full Parole although members of your Case Management Team support neither. If released, your plans for Day Parole would be to live at a halfway house, few of which are willing to accept you because of your past sexual offence. The support available to you in the community is limited as your unrelenting and past criminal behaviour has closed the door on many options.

At your hearing, you spoke at length about the progress you believe you have made, specifically through some of your readings. You state you last used substances some 19 months ago, and that with the assistance of a structured release, you could continue in your abstinence and quest for a crime-free lifestyle.

Mr. Lamb, the Board has listened closely to your presentation at your hearing as well as thoroughly reviewed your file. We commend you for the positive efforts you have made to change, those efforts including the working through of a variety of self-help books and your attendance at a five day program. However, these simply do not outweigh the high risk you pose to the community if released at this juncture. Your severe substance abuse, which is at the root of most of your offending behaviours, remains unaddressed during this period of incarceration, and your motivation is questionable when we look at your behaviour within the institution.

Based on the above, the Board concludes that your risk is not manageable in the community under the proposed initiatives and denies both your Day and Full Parole.
